Key Findings

The January 2016 Franklin & Marshall College Poll of Pennsylvania registered voters shows increasing dissatisfaction with the direction of the state and with the state's politicians. Two in three (67\%) registered voters believe the state is "on the wrong track," up from 62\% in October, and two in five (38\%) say that government and politicians are the biggest problems facing the state. Four in five (82\%) voters believe that state government needs reformed. These sentiments are continuing to affect Governor Wolf's job performance ratings; 33\% of registered voters believe he is doing an "excellent" or "good" job as governor, which is down from $36 \%$ in October and 39\% in August. The January Poll shows that more registered voters continue to hold the state legislature (52\%) than the governor (32\%) responsible for the state's late budget.

Tom Wolf Job Performance and the State Budget Impasse

One in three (33\%) registered Pennsylvania voters believes Governor Wolf is doing an "excellent" or "good" job as governor, which is a decrease from the October (36\%) and August (39\%) polls. Only half (49\%) Democrats rate his performance as "excellent" or "good," down from 57\% in October. Governor Wolf's job performance ratings are similar to Governors Rendell and Corbett but lower than Governor Ridge at this point in their first terms (see Figure 1).

How would you rate the way that [fill Governor] is handling his job as governor? Would you say he is doing... an excellent job, a good job, only a fair job, or a poor job as governor?

More registered voters hold the state legislature (52\%) than the governor (32\%) responsible for the state's late budget, a proportion that has remained consistent since August. The proportion that trusts the governor (42\%) and the state legislature (39\%) to make decisions about the state budget has also remained stable since August. As with previous surveys, responses about the budget are heavily influenced by party; about three-quarters (73\%) of Democrats believe the state legislature is more responsible than the governor for the budget impasse, but one in two (52\%) Independent voters and only one quarter (26\%) of Republicans believe so.

The state budget impasse is affecting how registered voters perceive the state and state government. The proportion of registered voters who believe the state is headed in the right direction is nearly half what it was last March (21\% in January compared to 39\% in March), prior to the budget impasse. Two in five (38\%) registered voters believe that government and politicians are the state's greatest problem. More than four in five (82\%) registered voters think the state government needs reformed, and this sentiment is strongly held among voters of all parties (76\% of Republicans, 86\% of Democrats, and 88\% of Independents). Only one in seven (14\%) registered voters believes the state legislature is doing an "excellent" or "good job."

President Obama's Job Performance

Two in five (41\%) registered Pennsylvania voters believe President Obama is doing an "excellent" or "good" job as President, which is about the same as in recent surveys. Two in three (65\%) of the state's registered Democrats provide the president with a favorable job performance rating, and only one in three (32\%) independents does. One in ten (12\%) registered Republicans rate his performance favorably. President Obama’s job performance ratings are better than President Bush's ratings in Pennsylvania at a similar point in his presidency (Figure 2).

How would you rate the way that [fill President] is handling his job as President? Would you say he is doing... an excellent job, a good job, only a fair job, or a poor job as President?

President Obama proposed several initiatives designed to strengthen the nation's background check system for gun buyers. A majority (55\%) of registered Pennsylvania voters has consistently favored more laws that regulate gun ownership (see Marginal Frequency Report). An even larger share of registered voters supports the President's proposals to strengthen the background check system. More than four in five (88\%) favor requiring background checks for all gun buyers and more than four in five (85\%) favor incorporating more information about mental health into the background check system.

Presidential Primary Races

Hillary Clinton holds a sizable advantage in the presidential race among registered Democrats in Pennsylvania. Secretary Clinton leads her closest rival, Senator Bernie Sanders $46 \%$ to $29 \%$, with $16 \%$ reporting they are still undecided. Secretary Clinton led Senator Sanders by a larger margin in October, 52\% to 18\%.

The contest for the Republican presidential nomination is a bit clearer than in October.
At the moment, Donald Trump (24\%) leads Ted Cruz (14\%) and Marco Rubio (11\%) with about one in four (26\%) registered voters still undecided (see Figure 3). In October, Donald Trump and Ben Carson were in a dead heat, $23 \%$ to $22 \%$, and Marco Rubio was third (13\%).

Methodology

The survey findings presented in this release are based on the results of interviews conducted January 18 - 23, 2016. The interviews were conducted at the Center for Opinion Research at Franklin & Marshall College on behalf of the Center for Politics and Public Affairs. The Poll was designed and administered by the staff of the Center for Opinion Research. The data included in this release represent the responses of 732 Pennsylvania registered voters, including 361 Democrats, 276 Republicans, and 95 Independents. The sample of registered voters was obtained from Labels & Lists. All sampled respondents were notified by letter about the survey. Interviews were completed over the phone and on-line depending on each respondent's preference. Survey results were weighted (gender, region and party registration) using an iterative weighting algorithm to reflect the known distribution of those characteristics as reported by the Pennsylvania Department of State.

The sample error for this survey is +/- 3.6 percentage points when the design effects from weighting are considered. In addition to sampling error, this poll is also subject to other sources of non-sampling error. Generally speaking, two sources of error concern researchers most. Nonresponse bias is created when selected participants either choose not to participate in the survey or are unavailable for interviewing. Response errors are the product of the question and answer process. Surveys that rely on self-reported behaviors and attitudes are susceptible to biases related to the way respondents process and respond to survey questions
